Corporate Social Responsibility Award

This award is open to all companies in the energy space, including producers, traders, retailers and exchanges.

In these historic and universally challenging times, the Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) Award illuminates the ever-important convergence of profitability and company values. Rather than an obligation, CSR is a voluntary commitment, which greatly motivates employee morale; is of fundamental interest to customers, investors and other key stakeholders; and is a key element of a company's character.

The judges will seek a high-performing organization that has evidenced its positive influence on surrounding communities, promotes teamwork toward sustainable, long-term impacts, and encourages active employee participation beyond financial contributions. Not only will this organization have established a commitment to society and its well-being, but will also have a compelling communications program that effectively conveys that commitment.

There will be two awards given in this category. Targeted CSR Award will highlight a CSR initiative that concentrates on a singular space, even if it has vast impact; while Diversified CSR Award welcomes programs that simultaneously concentrate on multiple areas; e.g. education, healthcare and economic prosperity.

Judges will consider all sustained programs, possibly part of a rich portfolio, that are currently in operation and scheduled to continue through 2020.

Note: Due to the high number of distinguished nominees regularly received, Platts reserves the right to expand this award.
